

Premier League (England)

Beitrag von „soerenrudi“ vom 5. April 2020, 13:42

Twenty years on from the murders of Kevin Speight and Chris Loftus, Leeds' darkest night will never be forgotten

Zitat

Sunday's 20th anniversary of the murders of Leeds United fans Kevin Speight and Chris Loftus in Istanbul would have been observed, like the previous 19, by the laying of flowers beneath the modest, brass plaque honouring their lives and at the feet of the adjacent statue of Billy Bremner on Elland Road. The coronavirus lockdown may have frustrated that poignant tradition but everyone who remembers the darkest night in the club's history will mark the day, commemorating two men who were unknown to the majority of them yet will never be forgotten.